

Shida Scholarship Program

Guidance for Scholars

Scholars selected for this scholarship program agree to keep the following in mind and to abide by them.

【Distribution of Scholarship and Payment Method】

- After arriving to the US/Canada/UK, the scholarship recipient shall open a bank account in his/her own name in the country a recipient will be staying, and report the bank name, account number, and other banking information to Kyodai Collaborative as soon as possible.
- Upon receipt of the account information from the scholarship recipient, Kyodai Collaborative will wire transfer the first-year scholarship funds to the recipient's local bank account.

However, for those who wish to have the funds deposited to the recipient's bank account in Japan, the scholarship will be paid in Japanese yen based on the exchange rate at the time of transfer.

- For the payment of the second year of study abroad, the same amount as for the first year will be wire transferred on the same month one year after the start of study abroad.

【Reporting Obligations】

<Obligations to report during and after the scholarship program>

- Scholars shall report in writing to Kyodai Collaborative once a year on the results of your studies or research. If the report is not submitted by the due date, the scholarship may be suspended.
